Sailors' Week

TO BE OBSERVED THROUGHOUT
ALBERTA COMMENCING ON THE
KING'S BIRTHDAY JUNE 3RD
AND ENDING JUNE 8th

Arrangements are being made throughout the Province of Alberta for a Sailors' Week, commencing on the King's Birthday, June 3rd, and ending on the 8th with a Tag Day.

During the week a general appeal will be made to all citizens, men, women and children to contribute something towards assisting the Navy League of Canada in caring for the widows and orphans of the men of the Navy and the Merchant Service as well. The committee in charge of arrangements hope to raise at least $150,000 in Alberta.

Very little to date has been done in Alberta for the sailors, particularly those of the Merchant Service. The Navy League of England and the Overseas Dominions has undertaken to care for the widows, children and dependents of the seamen who have lost their lives in defence of the Empire, and will endeavor to educate their children and give them a good start in life. The League is also looking after Sailors' Homes, Schools, Institutes, Asylums, Missions, etc. The Navy League of Canada is arranging to erect a building at Halifax, N. S., for the sailors at a cost of $100,000, and has also contributed $30,000 to assist the Homes on the Pacific Coast and the Great Lakes, besides sending $10,000 per month to the various institutions in England. Already the League has forwarded $500,000—$250,000 for the Navy men and $250,000 for the Merchant Service. There is a greater work to be done and money is urgently needed.

THE SAILORS OF THE NAVY SAVED
THE EMPIRE

It is largely through the work of the Navy that Canada is British today. It is largely through the work of the Navy that the farmers of this country are enabled to obtain the present price for their wheat. Without the Navy no food could cross the Atlantic, our boys in France could not be fed, and no transports, either from Canada or the United States, could be forwarded.

Anyone wishing to contribute can forward to the Editor of this paper, who will see that all amounts are sent to Headquarters Alberta Division of the Navy League, or to Messrs. T. W. Cunnison, Union Bank; J. W. Doran, Royal Bank;

A. Brusso and W. Hunsperger, postmaster, and such donations will be acknowledged through the columns of the PIONEER as well as by the office in Calgary.

SPRING WEATHER HARD ON BABY

The Canadian spring weather—one day mild and bright; the next raw and blustery—is extremely hard on the baby. Conditions are such that the mother cannot take the little one out for the fresh air so much to be desired. He is confined to the house which is often overheated and badly ventilated. He catches cold; his little stomach and bowels become disordered and the mother soon has a sick baby to look after. To prevent this an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets should be given. They regulate the stomach and bowels, thus preventing or curing colds, simple fevers, colic or any other of the many minor ailments of childhood. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

In the Absence of Clergy

Some time ago a dinner was given in New York at which a well-known actor, who is something of a free-thinker along theological lines, sat at the guest table. When the hour for starting the feast arrived the toastmaster, a very religious man, discovered that no minister of the Gospel was present, though several had been invited. In this emergency, he turned to the actor and asked him to say grace.

The actor rose, bowed his head, and in the midst of a deep hush said reverently:

"There being no clergyman present, let us thank God!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Ancient Bolsheviki

Athenians Declared it Monstrous to Be Prevented From Doing
What They Chose

On a memorable occasion the assembled Athenians declared it monstrous that they should be prevented from doing whatever they chose. No force that existed could restrain them; and they resolved that no duty should restrain them, and that they would be bound by no laws that were not of their own making. In this way the emancipated people of Athens became a tyrant; and their government, the pioneer of European freedom, stands condemned with a terrible unanimity by all the wisest of the ancients. They ruined their city by attempting to conduct war by debate in the market place. Like the French republic, they put their successful commanders to death. They treated their dependencies with such injustice that they lost their maritime empire. They plundered the rich until the rich conspired with the public enemy, and they crowned their guilt by the martyrdom of Socrates.—From Lord Acton's Essays.

WOMEN! IT IS MAGIC! LIFT OUT ANY CORN

Apply a few drops then lift corns or calluses off with fingers—no pain

Just think! You can lift off any corn or callus without pain or soreness.

A Cincinnati man discovered this ether compound and named it Freezone. Any druggist will sell a tiny bottle of Freezone, like here shown, for very little cost. You apply a few drops directly upon a tender corn or callus. In only the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it right off.

Freezone is wonderful. It dries instantly. It doesn't eat away the corn or callus, but shrivels it up without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Hard, soft or corns between the toes, as well as painful calluses, lift right off. There is no pain before or afterwards. If your druggist hasn't Freezone, tell him to order a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.

A Chapel for Lord Kitchener

It has been decided to erect a chapel in St. Paul's Cathedral in memory of Lord Kitchener. A site on the ground floor of the cathedral has been offered by the dean and chapter, and at a private meeting of the committee of the Lord Kitchener memorial fund at the mansion house the offer was accepted. In addition, the fund is providing 20 scholarships for one year to overseas sailors and soldiers who gave up their university studies to join the colors at the outbreak of war, and who have been disabled. Two have already gone to Cambridge, one to Edinburgh, one to Oxford and two to the Imperial college of science.

Dangers of the Front

Two Irish women were sympathizing with each other on the terrors of the war. One of them said: "Sure and you have heard of the trouble of Denny, my husband?"

"Naw; what was it?"

"Sure he was shot at the abdomen."

"Oh, that's too bad. And where is the abdomen?"

"I don't know, but it is somewhere at the front."

The young man and the girl were standing outside the front door, having a final chat. He was leaning against the door post, talking in low tones. Presently the young lady looked round to discover her father in the doorway, clad in a dressing gown.

"Why, father, what in the world is the matter?" she inquired.

"John," said the father, addressing himself to the young man, "you know I have never complained about your staying late, and I'm not going to complain of that now; but foolishness sake stop leaning against the bell push and let the rest of the family get some sleep."—Judge.

German Sword Cannot Bring Peace

No World Peace Can Ever Be Assured Through Dominant Germany

The coming world peace, the exultant Kaiser is reported as saying in a message from the battle front, will be assured "through the German sword." It is inconceivable that he accurately forecasts the future. It should be said in what is, perhaps, the darkest hour of the war, that no world peace can ever, by any possible decree of fate, be assured by the German sword. The worst might happen on the continent, and the broken British army be driven into its boats out of France, retiring to its island fortress, and still America and Great Britain could continue a maritime war against Germany for years. It was done in the case of Napoleon and it is not apparent that the thing has become impossible today.—Springfield Republican.

Fighting isn't the only duty of a soldier, and exposure to bullets is not as serious as exposure to all kinds of weather and dampness. Continuous and monotonous Work
—most trying on the Nerves

DOING the same thing, in the same way, day after day and week after week, means destruction to the nerve cells and collapse of the nervous system of the human body.

Whether in the munition factory or in the home, in the store or in the office, it is monotony that kills. And it is because woman's work is more often monotonous than men's that so many women suffer from nervous exhaustion and prostration, nervous headaches, neuralgic pains and general run-down condition of the body.

It is easy for the doctor to say you must have change and rest, but the expense of living is so great at this time that few can afford to follow such advice.

But there is restoration and health awaiting you in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This great reconstructive treatment cures by supplying the elements which Nature uses in the formation of new, rich blood and the creation of new nerve force.

If you are a regular reader of this paper you will find cures reported almost daily, and no matter where you live you will find people who will tell you with enthusiasm of the benefits obtained by using this great food cure.

Had to Educate America to War

BUT NOW U. S. HAS STARTED MEANS BUSINESS—MANY DIFFICULTIES MET

Addressing the Canadian Club at Ottawa recently William Redfield, United States Secretary of Commerce, said: "Gentlemen, we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against powers and rulers of wickedness, against spiritual evil in high places, and our flags entwined are the flags of the Almighty, bearing His truth; our sons, the messengers of the Almighty, bearing His message of righteousness."

The distinguished statesman made a brilliant speech on what America is doing in the war, dealing with the question of her delay in entering the struggle. He declared that it was not until a few weeks ago that it could be said that every element of distrust among the peoples of the United States had been wiped out of existence, for it had been embedded deeply in the hearts of the American people for scores of years past that they should have nothing to do with the affairs of Europe, and it had required a complete reversal of American thought to bring them into line.

Referring to American and Canadian soldiers as fighting for home, for the honor and purity of womanhood, for the protection of childhood and to defend the civilization of a thousand years now questioned and attacked by the Hun, Mr. Redfield said he was glad to tell his audience that there is gathering to the south a power greater than he could even venture to think. The United States did not enter rapidly, he admitted, because the people of America had been taught from childhood that their country had nothing, could have nothing, and would have nothing to do with the affairs of Europe. It needed an earthquake to make the American people put this creed aside, he said; it required complete reversal of American thought.

A still further difficulty was that America has large territories populated by non-English-speaking peoples. It has been said, Mr. Redfield continued, that New York had more Germans than Hamburg, more Italians than Rome, more Irish than Dublin, and more Jews than Palestine.

Order in Council Amended In Regard to Flour

A recent Order in Council published in regard to the quantity of flour a person may have in stock has been amended as follows:

Whereas to require farmers at present to return any surplus flour as directed in Order of the Canada Food Board number 31 may incur loss of time and interfere with productions:

In exercise of the powers conferred upon it by Orders of His Excellency, the Governor General in Council, dated the 12th day of March, 1918, P. C. 596 and P. C. 597, and of all other powers enabling it in that behalf, the Canada Food Board hereby orders as follows:

Section 1 of Order number 31 of the Canada Food Board dated the 25th day of April, 1918, is amended by adding the following sub-sections:

(c) A bona fide farmer shall be permitted to hold, subject to the order of the Canada Food Board, the amount of flour, made wholly or in part from wheat, he may have in his possession in excess of the amount prescribed by the above Order if, on or before the 15th day of June, 1918, he reports to the miller or dealer from whom it was purchased or by whom it was manufactured, the excess amount held by him. It shall then be the duty of such miller or dealer to report all such holdings to the Canada Food Board on forms to be supplied and at such times as he is directed.

(d) Any person holding or having in his possession not more than 25 pounds of flour made wholly or in part from wheat, or who holds or has in his possession at the date hereof part only of one original package in which such flour was purchased, though the amount exceeded 25 pounds, shall be permitted to hold the same.

The penalty for not observing this law is a fine not exceeding $1,000 or less than $100 or in default imprisonment for three months or to both fine and imprisonment.

GERMANY HAD THE OPPORTUNITY FOR PRESERVING WORLD PEACE

MORE REVELATIONS CONCERNING ENEMY'S GUILT

Memorandum of Prince Lichnowsky Shows That Germany Could Have Reached Agreement Acceptable to Great Britain, But Balked Efforts of Ambassador to London

Further sections of the memorandum which Prince Lichnowsky, German ambassador at London when the war began, wrote for the purpose of justifying his position to personal friends, are published by The Political, organ of the Extreme Left of the Socialists. In the preceding sections Prince Lichnowsky described his efforts to secure a better understanding between Germany and Britain after his appointment as ambassador to London in 1912, and how they were thwarted because of the persistence of the German foreign office in backing up the Austrian view on Eastern questions, the following out of which he felt would lead to a collision with Russia and a world war.

The new portions of the memorandum deal principally with the negotiations over the Anglo-German colonial treaty. Prince Lichnowsky remarks at the outset that the good relations he had established in London had effected a noticeable improvement in Germany's relations with Britain. Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign minister, devoted himself honestly to this rapprochement, says the prince, and his intentions to this end were especially noticeable as regarded the colonial treaty and the Baghdad railway.

In 1898, continues Prince Lichnowsky, Count von Hatzfeldt-Wildenburg, the German minister to Great Britain, signed a secret agreement with the British government dividing the Portuguese colonies in Africa into economic spheres of interest between Germany and Great Britain, insuring the inviolability and independence of the Portuguese kingdom, and declaring the intention to support Portugal financially and economically. The agreement, therefore, he points out, did not clash with the old Anglo-Portuguese treaty dating from the sixteenth century. Nevertheless, at the instigation of the Marquis de Soveral, Portuguese minister to Great Britain, a new Anglo-Portuguese treaty, the so-called Windsor treaty, was signed in 1899, reinforcing the old treaty, the prince sets forth.

The Anglo-German negotiations, which began before Prince Lichnowsky's arrival, were intended to secure the revision and improvement of the treaty of 1898, and, thanks to the accommodating attitude of the British government, Prince Lichnowsky says he was able to give the new treaty a form conforming to German wishes and interests.

"Sir Edward Grey," continues Prince Lichnowsky, "wished to show us good-will, and also in the main to further our colonial development, while Great Britain also wished to lead the German development of power from the North Sea and Western Europe to the Atlantic and Africa. We do not grudge Germany her colonial development," a member of the cabinet said to me.

Prince Lichnowsky goes on to say that the treaty was practically in readiness in 1913, but that "new difficulties arose to prevent its signing, and only a year later, shortly before the outbreak of the war, could I receive authority to conclude the treaty. It was, however," he adds, "never signed."

"Sir Edward Grey would only sign it on condition that the treaty be published, together with the 1898 and 1899 treaties. England has no secret treaties, and it was contrary to the existing principles to keep the treaty secret. Sir Edward could therefore conclude no treaty without publishing it, but the German foreign office, where my successes in London had created increasing distrust, stated that the publication would jeopardize German interests in the colonies, where, moreover, the Portuguese would give us no more concessions. The treaty, which offered us exceptional advantages, consequently fell through. This was another war sacrifice."

Sailors of Britain Hostile to Germans

Members of National Seamen's Union Have No Use for Pirates

The attitude of British sailors with regard to Germany's submarine campaign was shown by J. Havelock Wilson, general secretary of the national seamen's union, who, speaking at a meeting of sailors at Cardiff, Wales, asked those who had been torpedoed to stand up. One hundred and seventeen men of the 360 present arose. Mr. Wilson then remarked: "You men who are standing have had some experience with German kultur. Are you prepared to follow the advice of some of our labor leaders and shake hands with the pirates? All those who are willing to shake hands with the Germans will remain standing."

Not one of the 117 men remained on his feet.

Engineering Wonder

Suspension Bridge Built of Wire in British Columbia Has Collapsed

When the suspension bridge that Indians of Hagiglet built across the Bulkley Canyon in Northwestern British Columbia recently collapsed the world lost one of its engineering wonders. With only the tools of the wilderness, with no knowledge of the laws of stress, vibration, tensile strength and carrying load of various materials, the red men succeeded after two failures in throwing across the canyon at a height of one hundred feet a suspension bridge one hundred and forty-six feet long and ten feet wide.

A little while before the first successful Atlantic cable was laid an American telegraph company conceived the brilliant scheme of connecting North America by wire with Europe. The plan was to run a line through the wilderness at the extreme end of North America, then over the very narrow strip of water of Bering Strait to land in Siberia. Thence the wire would connect with all the capitals of Europe. The company started work and at immense expense carried a great deal of material into the Canadian wilderness. While the work was still proceeding, however, the unbelievable happened: the Atlantic cable was successfully placed across the bottom of the ocean. That put an end to work on the overland project, and great piles of wire were abandoned in the wilderness because of the prohibitive cost of taking it out.

This wire was the only white man's material that the Indians of Hagiglet used in making their remarkable suspension bridge. Their chief reliance was the timber from the surrounding forests. No nail was to be found in its entire length; the joints were made by dovetailing and by burning holes through the logs and fastening them together with strong handmade wooden spikes.

When the Klondike rush occurred the bridge helped many gold seekers over the difficult canyon, for it lay on the route that a great many men took going into the mines.

Its collapse was owing to neglect, for, although several requests had been made for a grant to preserve it, nothing had been done. This neglect is probably explained by the fact that the bridge was no longer needed commercially, for not long ago an English firm of bridge builders spanned the canyon with the latest type of modern suspension bridge. The new structure, one of the highest of its kind on the North American continent, is two hundred and fifty feet above the river. It is four hundred and fifty-one feet long and nine feet wide, and is capable of sustaining a moving load of eighteen thousand pounds. A photograph shows the two bridges, a striking contrast, now unfortunately lost to view forever.

More Freedom the Cure

Violence and Outrages Due to Ignorance of the People

If it were possible that a people brought up under an intolerant and arbitrary system could subvert that system without acts of cruelty and folly, half the objections to despotic power would be removed. We deplore the outrages which accompany revolutions. But the more violent the outrages, the more assured we feel that a revolution was necessary. The violence of these outrages will always be proportioned to the ferocity and ignorance of the people and will be proportioned to the oppression and degradation under which they have been compelled to live. It is the character of such revolutions that we always see the worst of them at first. Till men have been some time free, they know not how to use their freedom. The final and permanent fruits of liberty are wisdom, moderation, and mercy. Its immediate effects are often atrocious crimes, conflicting errors, skepticism on points the most clear, dogmatism on points the most mysterious. It is just at this crisis that its enemies love to exhibit it. There is only one cure for the evils which newly-acquired freedom produces; and that cure is freedom. The reader who has got thus far may be tempted to exclaim: "What twaddle!" But what he has been reading was written by Macaulay in 1825. We admit, however, that it seems to have its application to events in Russia in 1918.—From the New York Evening Post.

RUSSIA HAS LONG BEEN UNDER THE DOMINATION OF GERMANY

WORK OF UNDERMINING NATIONAL STRUCTURE

Collapse of Nation was the Logical Result of a Campaign that Has Been Going On for Generations, According to Writers Who Have Intimate Knowledge of Conditions

It is a mistaken idea that the collapse of Russian resistance to Germany was a matter of a few months. For fifty years or more the Germans have been undermining the national structure of Russia, and only a miracle could have prevented what has happened. It was the logical result of a campaign that has been going on for generations, and as we look back over the events of recent years it seems that the alliance between Russia and France was an artificial alliance, and that the natural fate of the Russian people was that of subservience to Germany. Prussia knows Russia better than any other country knows her. The French were strangers in the alliance, however honestly Russian statesmen strove to fulfill the terms of the pact. There is a common Russian saying, "The money comes from France, but the brains come from Germany."

In Russia we are watching the last act of the drama; we see military penetration following the peaceful penetration that was going on even before the birth of the German empire. Attention is called to this fact by K. Bercevic in the New York Sun, who seems to know as much about foreign affairs as his name implies. He quotes from C. L. Schindler, who wrote a history of Russia in 1847, in which he says with simple Teutonic modesty: "Russia contains within her a nation of Germans, who in all respects possess an unquestioned superiority over the Russians. And it is from them, the Germans, that she draws the most distinguished of her statesmen, her politicians and her warriors. And why is it that these are, comparatively speaking, so superior to her Russian subjects? Precisely because as men they were born Germans; their intelligence have been cultivated, have been developed in the more genial soil of a richer, a more elevated, a more enlightened civilization." Old kultur again.

But there is truth in the boasting, and in the old saying about the brains coming from Germany. The penetration of Russia by Prussia which has been going on for generations with the approval, if not with the suggestion, of the German government, has had the tendency of putting Russian business in the hands of Germans. They have been the lawyers, the professors, the "intellectuals" of the country. It is said that in the eyes of the ignorant Russian peasant every German is a doctor, and there is a story to the effect that when the German doctor died in a certain village the populace insisted that his German servant should carry on the business, and beat him until he consented to do so. The higher educational standards in Germany enabled the German professional man to outstrip their Russian competitors and just as other countries, against their will perhaps, have become resigned to see the banking business largely in the hands of Jews, so the Russians have become accustomed to seeing Germans controlling the commerce of the country and becoming leaders in other walks of life.

In Lithuania the richest tradesmen are Germans. The Baltic provinces have been thoroughly Germanized, and the aristocracy is almost wholly German. Poland, Finland and Courland acknowledged German predominance long before the events of the past few months. It is true, as the historian boasted, that Russia has been indebted to Germany for many of the men who have directed her public affairs. Russia's greatest oppressors—Bahren, Pahlen, Benckendorff, Berg, von Plehve, Minn, Riman, Kaulbars and Steurmer have been Germans; and at the head of the Russian army have been such Teutons as Stakelberg, Stark, Stossel, Reinckenkamp, Grippenberg and Graner. In many cases where the Germanic name of a particular Russian does not explain his pro-Germanism his affection for Germany was derived from a German mother, or perhaps from a handsome German bribe.

Germany has always formed a barrier between Russia and the outside world. We have been obliged to see Russia through her eyes, and her desire was to show Russia to the worst advantage in order that the Russians might drink in the belief that Germany alone understood and loved her. The Jewish massacres were approved by Germany with this end in view. Germany had also the motive of particular hatred for the Jews because they promised eventually to open the eyes of the Russians to the fact that they were being exploited by Germany. German agents were also active in promoting revolutionary uprisings and in any other enterprise which would weaken the strength of the nation, lower it in the estimation of the outside world and make its final downfall more certain. For generations she continued to "bear" the stock of the Bear in order that at the meeting of the creditors she could buy in the hide at her own figure. She appears to have succeeded, although her present title is none better than that of a man who buys property at a tax sale.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Carmen's Messenger

— BY — HAROLD BINDLOSS

WARD, LOCK & CO., LIMITED
London, Melbourne, and Toronto

I looked somewhat bulkier and he examined it carefully, but the cover did not seem to have been removed. It could not have been replaced by another, because the original address was there and he knew Carmen's hand; then there was a seal, which he did not think could have been tampered with. Besides, the man had only had it for a minute or two, and if he had opened it, would probably have taken something out instead of putting something in. Foster decided that he was mistaken about its size and returned it to his pocket.

Then he wanted a cigarette and took out the case he had got in the fur coat. Since he had left the coat in Montreal, the case was the only record of his adventure on the train and he wondered whether he would ever be able to restore it to its owner and speculated languidly about the man. As the latter knew his name, it was strange that he had not communicated with him at the Windsor, as he had promised. He had obviously not been attacked, because there had been nothing about it in the Canadian newspapers. The thing was puzzling, but after all it did not concern Foster much and he thought about something else.

It was late when he arrived at Newcastle and went to a hotel. There was fog and rain next morning, and he saw very little of the town, which seemed filled with smoke. Taking a taxi car that carried him past rows of dingy buildings and shops where lights twinkled, he got out at the corner of a narrow street that ran back into the haze. After looking at the address on the packet he plunged into the gloom beside a row of tall, sooty buildings. There was no pavement and here and there a cart stood beneath an opening in the wall. The buildings were apparently warehouses, but some of the doors had brass plates and lights shone in the upper windows. By and by he found the number he wanted and entered a dirty arch, inside which a few names were painted on the wall. Graham's was not there, but he went up the steps to inquire at the first office he reached.

The lower stories were used as a warehouse and he came to the top landing before he saw a name that seemed to be Danish or Scandinavian painted on a door and going in knocked on the counter. The office was small and shabby and smelt of bacon, which he thought indicated that its occupant dealt in provisions, but he could not see much because of a glass partition. When he was getting impatient, an old man came to the counter.

"Can you tell me if there's a Mr. Graham in this building?" Foster asked.

"Yes, he's here," said the other. "What do you want?"

Foster said he had brought a packet from Canada and the old man, who looked rather hard at him, lifted a flap in the counter and told him to pass through. A door in the partition opened as he advanced and another man beckoned him to come in. It looked as if the latter had heard what had passed, but this saved an explanation and Foster, who asked if he was Graham, put the packet on a table. There was not much else in the small, dusty room, except a cupboard fitted with pigeon holes and a safe.

"This is from Miss Austin of Gardner's Crossing," he said. Graham glanced at the packet carelessly, as if he did not consider it of much importance, and Foster felt puzzled. The fellow was not as old as Carmen's father, but Foster thought there was something about him that would attract a girl used to admiration, as Carmen was. He was certainly not handsome and had, on the whole, a commonplace look, while he was obviously in a small way of business.

"Thank you," he said. "It seems you have been to Edinburgh. We had a branch there, but closed it recently. Newcastle has more facilities for importing our goods. I'm afraid you have been put to some trouble."

Foster replied that he did not mind this, since he had promised Miss Austin to bring the packet and she was a friend of his, but although he studied the man's face, saw nothing to indicate that he was interested.

"Are you staying here?" he asked, and when Foster told him that he was going back as soon as he could, resumed: "If you had been staying, I would have been glad to take you about the town; but, after all, there's nothing much in the way of amusement going on. I might arrange to meet you in the afternoon, but must now finish some letters for the Continental mail."

Foster, who said he could not wait, went out, feeling that the other was pleased to get rid of him. Graham was obviously a small importer of provisions, and he could not see why the girl in Edinburgh had warned him to post the packet. "Carmen's reason for sending such a man something she valued was impossible to discern.

This, however, was not Foster's business, and after lunch he caught a train to Hexham, and, finding he could get no farther, spent the night in the old border town.

VIII. An Offer of Help

It rained and the light was going when Foster sat in a window seat of the library at the Garth. He was alone, but did not mind this. The Featherstones treated him as one of the family; he was free to do what he liked, and Alice, who had talked to him for half an hour, had just gone away. Lighting a cigarette, he mused and looked about.

Outside, the first rose, black and dripping, above the wet drive. Between their trunks he saw the river, stained with peat, braving among the stones, and the streaks of foam that stretched across a coffee-colored pool. Then a few boggy fields ran back into the mist that hung about the hills. A red fire threw a soft glow about the library. The room was somewhat shabby but spacious. Rows of old books in stained bindings, which Foster thought nobody read, faded into the gloom at its other end. It was warm and quiet, and he found it a comfortable retreat.

He had now been at the Garth a fortnight and did not want to leave. Featherstone and his wife obviously wished him to stay; he was grateful for the welcome they had given him, and felt as if he belonged to the place. What Alice thought was not clear, but she treated him with a quiet friendliness that he found singularly pleasant. By and by he began to wonder why his comrade had not written, particularly as he had brought away a bag of Lawrence's. He had one like it, and as both had its owner's initials stamped outside, he imagined the baggage agent had been deceived by the F when he affixed the check. Lawrence's bag, however, had his name engraved upon the lock.

Foster sat down in a big chair by the fire, and imagined he fell asleep because it had got nearly dark without his noticing it when the opening of the door roused him. Looking up, he saw Featherstone come in with a letter in his hand. The post did not arrive until the afternoon.

Corn as Food and Fuel

Was Greatly Valued in Stove and Fireplace

Food serves substantially the same purpose in the body as fuel in the engine. It provides the energy for work. The carbohydrates, that is the sugars, starches and celluloses, can all be used as fuels and can all be used as foods. The final products, water and carbon dioxide, are in both cases the same, and necessarily, therefore, the amount of energy produced is the same in the body as in the engine.

Corn is a good example of the equivalence of the two sources of energy. There are few better foods and no better fuels. I can remember the good old days in Kansas when we had corn to burn. It was both an economy and a luxury, for—at 10 cents a bushel—it was cheaper than coal or wood and preferable to either at any price. The long yellow ears, each wrapped in its own kindling, could be handled without cracking the fingers. Each kernel as it cracked sent out a blazing jet of oil and the cobs left a fine bed of coals for the corn popper to be shaken over.

The Second Big German Offensive Has Started

The long looked for second big German offensive action this spring commenced on Sunday last and they have made a few small gains, but the British and French are holding them splendidly. It is too early yet to give very much news of the fight.

WAR NOTES

Another bunch of German murderers flying in the air deliberately bombed a British hospital city in France a few nights ago, killing a large number of nurses, doctors, orderlies and wounded. According to the official report there was absolutely no excuse for this bombing as this place was composed entirely of hospitals with the usual signs, and even in the dark after the first bomb was thrown which set fire to some of the huts it could be plainly seen that this place was used for hospital purposes, but the hellish huns sent four squadrons of aeroplane over the place with the result that a large number of these brave men and women were absolutely murdered, among them being many Ontario people.

The Irish situation is still very grave and the British Government have published a partial statement which absolutely proves that the Sein Finn organization through the assistance of some Americans were in league with Germany, who had submarine bases on the coast of Ireland and has supplied this organization with arms and ammunition for an uprising which was to have taken place when the British were being hard pressed during the last big German offensive in March, but which failed to materialize.

Quebec is rallying splendidly now to the cause and there is some talk of forming purely French-Canadian brigades.

PROFITS DEPEND ON YOUR TURN-OVER

Your turn-over is entirely dependent upon your customer. With the continual advance in cost prices, you have 30 to 50 per cent. more money invested in stock. Your percentage of profit is the same or smaller. Then how are you going to show your usual profit next year. Greater fire risks, more interest on investment, increased labor costs must be met by a larger volume.

To get more volume you must have more actual customers. The PIONEER's customers would prefer to spend their money at home if you only make your advertisements a selling force.

The whole world buys or is influenced by the force of advertising.

The PIONEER offers you 500 families who are good sound citizens of this district. They want you to show them--that's all. Will you?

Call the PIONEER office by phone. We will tell you what it will cost you with no obligation attached.

Neapolis News

We are having rather peculiar weather, cold one day and warm the next. Everyone is almost sick with a cold.

Arden Deadrick went to Calgary last Monday to take up military duty.

Miss Lizzie Fox is home as her father is ill.

The ladies met at the Sylvester Davis home last Thursday to do Red Cross sewing.

Mrs. C. S. Chapin has been troubled with a weak heart of late, an old complaint, as it used to show signs of weakness in her childhood days, but the symptoms then were less noticeable and not so dangerous.

Mrs. Charles Deadrick and Mrs. Arden Deadrick were at Calgary last Wednesday and Thursday visiting Arden before he leaves there.

Our new neighbors on the Bicknell place, Mr. and Mrs. Reel, are quite entertaining people. The Rosebud people should call on them at an early date and show themselves sociable and make them feel more at home.

Grandma Meek is on the sick list. Mrs. Abe Meek was a visitor at the Henry Reiber home in Didsbury last Tuesday.

Mr. Joe Fulkerth and W. H. Ault have purchased the half-section lying across the road south of Joe Fulkerth's home place. Mr. Fulkerth gets the N. W. Quarter and Mr. Ault the N. E. quarter at $25 an acre, the land is all in wild grass with no improvements.

Hale and Windle Goehoe have been making records for themselves as "Star Pitchers," but the Fans haven't found it out yet.

Maude Lee visited friends at Innisfail recently.

Mr. Durrant, formerly of this place but now of Portland, Oregon, visited the Davis home recently. He reports Old Uncle Sammy up on his ear and getting ready to go after the Germans for blood from the air, a wonderful navy and millions of men which they are enlisting right along without being forced, their German population not bothering them. One old German got to talking too much who was very wealthy. They got him up in court and asked him how much money he had when he landed in the United States, he said 15c, so they took his property over, gave him a passport back to Germany and 15c and sent him back and the rest kept still.

Bergen-Niche Valley

Mr. Albert Olsen visited Niche-Valley calling on several families en route.

Mr. Ben Luktehaus and family visited Ira S. Gamble recently to celebrate Mrs. Harvey's fifty-third birthday.

Mr. N. S. Ellithorpe was in the Valley on business last Saturday.

It is so quite out here now since the mill has closed that the voice is echoed in a dozen directions.

Ira Gamble sent to Kansas City for an artificial arm. He expects soon to be larger than Parker Reed when he can feed from both hands.

Mr. J. T. Johanneson sawed nearly forty logs an hour the last week the mill ran. Sam Johanneson has been "head setter" all winter, which is very good for a young lad.

If you had seen Skugle take two green 3 x 4's 14 feet long and toss them down the chute you would think twice before trying to carry him off. He is some man with the axe too.

Rev. Jennings has moved onto his homestead. He likes himself pretty well in Alberta yet.

Mr. Ben Good is moving onto Mr. Kundsvick's place. That is good news.

Sam Dugan is moving away, but he'll come back.

Mr. Amos. Wilson of Westcott received a telegram on Monday that his son Ralph had been wounded in the left thigh and knee. Ralph was one of our popular High School boys and joined up with the 31st Batt. It is to be hoped that he will safely recover from his injuries.

Word has been received in Calgary that Capt. Rev. J. M. Shore, a former Church of England minister in Didsbury, was wounded in both legs on the western front. It was thought at first that he would lose both legs, but there is now some chance of saving one. Rev. Mr. Shore was well liked when he was stationed here and no doubt a great many old timers who remember him will learn with regret of his wounds.

Pupils and Teachers Purchase New Flag

The teachers and pupils of the Didsbury public and High schools have worked and saved their nickles and dimes to purchase a fine new flag, the Canadian Ensign, for the schoolhouse. The new flag will float for the first time on June 3rd, Monday next, the King's birthday. The old flag looked as though it had been through some of the fiercest battles on the western front, and the action of the schools is to be greatly commended.

U. F. A. and Women's Institutes Will Hold Picnic

It has been decided by the united branches of the U. F. A. and the Women's Institutes to hold a grand picnic in the Didsbury park, west of town, on Wednesday, June 5th, all day. Good speakers for both organizations will be present to address the crowds and it is hoped that everybody, whether members of these organizations or not, will come out. Arrangements will also be made for sports. Ladies are requested to bring lunches. Everybody is cordially invited to attend this picnic and come and have a good time.
